BARRE PLANS

JITNEY RULES

should be lived up to just the same as it was proposed to have the water superintendent fund regulations adhered to. The street superintendent was not blamed for the disease of the regulation.

The chief of police reported 14 arrests for April—eight for intoxication, one for keeping, two for breach of the peace, two for larceny, one for operating an automobile while intoxicated. The report was accepted.

Resignation of Charles C. Means as a regular fireman was accepted.

Assessor V. E. Ayers appeared in relation to quadrennial appraisal, which is to be taken this summer, and he asked that the city engineer be instructed to set markers showing the boundaries of leased land of the University of Vermont in Barre. It is probable that such instructions will be given.

A resolution setting aside $100 as a trust fund for the perpetual care of the G. A. R. lot in Elmwood cemetery was adopted. The mayor and city attorney were instructed to represent the city's interests in relation to taxation of city property in Barre Town.

An Unexpected Discussion.

The meeting had apparently reached its finish when Alderman Ossola suddenly injected an element of interest into the deliberations when he inquired of the mayor how many special deputy sheriffs were being employed in Barre at the present time. The mayor responded that so far as he knew there were three special deputies.

On receipt of that information, Alderman Ossola took a new tack and he declared it was a "shame" that the city police were employed to escort the large body of newcomers into Barre last night through the street to a hotel. He declared if "they" wanted to bring in "strike-breakers" that "they" ought to protect them, not the city.

Alderman Milne spoke in regard to the entertainment of the newcomers in a hotel, which had been voted exemption from taxation by the city.

Alderman Rogers and Averill declared that entertainment of guests was a matter for the hotel to decide and that, as a matter of fact, a hotel could not legally discriminate in its guests so long as the guests behaved themselves, or words to that effect.

Alderman Milne then declared that the hotel was built for the betterment of the city and for the entertainment of travelers, whereupon Alderman McCarthy injected the first element of humor into the discussion and relieved the tension by quietly declaring that "these fellows are travelers." With that the talk took an entirely new line about electric street lighting and the meeting soon ended.
